

ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

Simplot Australia is committed to protecting the environment, supporting sustainable development and adopting responsible environmental practices in its business operations. We do this by:

- Compliance with all applicable environment protection laws at the locations in which we operate.
- The application of sound environmental management systems which set targets for environmental management and continuous improvement.
- Review regularly the environmental impacts of our products, services and operations and determine how to minimise the impact of them whilst delivering quality, value and safe food products.
- Understanding global environmental issues and fostering sustainable agricultural and fishing practices.
- Communicating to all stakeholders our commitment to the environment.

Simplot Australia implements, maintains and monitors an environmental management system which is integrated with its operations. The system focuses on continuous improvement as a key objective and is aligned to the requirements of the Joint Australian and New Zealand Environmental Management Standard. It provides the framework for us to ensure that our business is conducted in a manner which prevents pollution, uses materials and energy efficiently and minimises the impact of our operations on the environment, the community, our employees, customers and consumers.

As part of our commitment to using materials and energy efficiently, we are a signatory to the National Packaging Covenant. Together with other industry members we are committed to the efficient, effective and environmentally sustainable handling of packaging materials.

We participate with our vegetable growers and fish suppliers in programs that ensure a sustainable agriculture and fishing industries for future generations. We have been involved with farmers for many years in developing agricultural best-practice guidelines including soil preparation, fertiliser regimes and harvesting. Whilst there are many factors influencing the development of sustainable fishing that are outside our control, Simplot Australia remains committed to moving towards supply from only sustainable sources.
